With the Players.

"As a Man Thinks" is likely to stir or as a sian Thinks" is likely to stir up more controversy among theatergoers than any other play of the season. It is essentially potentical and controversial. It has a strong dramatic buckboops, and it is excellently acted. Were it merely a hattledors and shuttlecoek of ideas, did the playwright speak to his audience like, a pulpiteer or any cracle, the value of the play, as a play, would be lest. Happing, the dramatic fabric is maintained in integrity from start to finish, and a play of the pl proud is the result.

The present itsestrical season has assuredly not been one of the most successful in recent years, but there is no diminution for that reason in the apparent gorgeoussess of the business workers in the theater. In the matter of railmost and haberdashery in all fix forms they are as much the glass of fashion as ever. It has happened in previous seasons that these business men of the theater are more striking in the elegance of their dress when the theater is not prospersors.

WALT MASON.

Uncle Walt Says To-day:

The years roll on, so swift, so swift! Old age on us advances, and we into its shadows drift with mournful backward glances. It seems but yesterday that we who falter now TIME PLIES. and totter were playing on the sunlit lea or by the woodland water. The days went by on heavy wing, slow then were life's long stages; for childhood seemed an endless thing of cycles and of ages. Thus time to childhood still appears a crippled thing on crutches; but, childhood past, the busy years throw on the high-speed clutches. Our minds intent on plan or scheme, on triumph or disaster, we do not mark the years that steam by faster and still faster. And then some day the truth comes home—the truth that makes man shiver; the scattered hairs upon his done, the pink pains in his liver, the creaking of his shoulderblades, and many another token, all tell him, while his valor fades, that he is old and broken! It is a thing demanding tears that in our fierce endeavor we do not prize the speedy years until they're gone forever.
